

First ever production studio

Frances Lindhurst

Sunny South

Had it not been forced to shut down, could Bungalow Town have been Britain's very own Hollywood?

History – Local Study

“Before the glamour of Hollywood, there was Bungalow Town...”

Known today as Shoreham Beach, it was once at the forefront of British film and host to the stars of the early silver screen. Named the ‘Hollywood of Sussex’, pupils will learn about Shoreham Beach’s past and the beginnings of stardom and the British Film Industry

Let’s learn about our history!

STEM

Sometimes what looks like magic is actually science! In this learning journey, pupils will look at magic and movie tricks for inspiration and find out how it’s done. They will explore how things are done to make movies look realistic and investigate whether some of the themes or technology from the movies could be possible in real life.

Computing

Pupils will be learning about the history of animation from Thaumatrope and Zoetrope... to making their own stop frame animations

And wherever the journey takes us....

*“Undoubtedly the Los Angeles of English Production”
Frank Spring of The Progress Film Company*